Good Morning

Yesterday I received the five (5) written adverse working condition complaints from Cambridge Elementary School concerning rodents in their classrooms. As I agree with the sites condition of mouse/rat dropping in several classroom, it is not due to the lack of effort or attention from this department. We have conducted the second full site examination performed by an outside contractor to locate points of entry and a program designed to effectively eliminate the issue. Two of the recommendations from the pest service has been ignored or eliminated by the site which is greatly hampering the results that we were experiencing. During the second site inspection, several large holes creating for the HVAC installation of pipes were identified and have been scheduled to be repaired on Monday, May 4, 2015. The major concern that we are facing after the new entry points have been sealed, is the food and drinks that are being used and stored in the classroom. Once control is re-established and with the eradication of the rodents, some food could be brought back in if preventative measures are taken. The attachments are pictures just taken along with the request from Principal Espinoza to the instructors asking to have the food and drinks removed which has never taken place.

Jeff, John, Rob, and John:

We contacted you the other day to alert you to the staff concern about rats at Cambridge. Jeff, you spoke to me personally about this and said the maintenance was already working on it. We have now received an adverse working condition form which Jose will respond to in writing per the contract. He will just check in with you to confirm what the next steps will include. Thank you.

A black and white photograph showing a storage bin filled with various items. In the center, there is a box of Krackery crackers. To the right, there is a bag of snacks, possibly Doritos. The bin is situated under a shelf, and some papers or documents are visible above it. The overall scene appears to be a storage area in a room.
